

Carole Bonnier is a member of the European Accounting Association and the Association Française de Comptabilité.

Her research focuses on the management of healthcare organisations, particularly the behaviour of healthcare professionals when management control tools are implemented. She is also interested in the management of cultural organisations in times of conflict.

She has contributed to numerous publications on financial accounting and management control in both private companies and public and private healthcare organisations.

As a faculty member, she primarily teaches financial accounting and management control. She has developed and managed several master's programmes, including those in internal control, management control, and healthcare management. She is currently the Scientific Director of the MSc in Management of Cultural Heritage and Activities.

Carole Bonnier is an Economics and Management Agrégée and holds a Doctorate in Management Science from CNAM Paris XII. She is also an alumna of the École Normale Supérieure – Cachan.

Carole is also deeply involved in designing and delivering training programmes in accounting, corporate finance, and management control for clients of the Corporate Executive Department.