

Call for applications: opening of an associate/assistant professor position in Sustainability Management at ESCP Business School, Paris Campus

We are looking for a candidate with a genuine interest and track record in Sustainability Management who will actively contribute to teaching and research in this area. Teaching should address different audiences, from undergraduate to executives. We prefer candidates who have already published in international journals, whose research combines rigor with relevance, and who have a good fit with the requirements of a modern Business School, with a strong ambition in the sustainability field.

Requirements

All candidates should publish in top-quality academic journals. Teaching is expected in undergraduate, graduate and postgraduate programs as well as in executive education. Previous experience in blended or e-learning may be a plus. Candidates should demonstrate skills in developing relationships with companies, NGOs, professional organizations, media and social networks so to contribute to expand and strengthen the reputation of ESCP Europe and its programs. Depending on the eligibility and qualification of the candidate, we would consider either an associate or an assistant professor position. Even if an outstanding doctoral dissertation is required for the application, we will also consider candidates who are in the final stage of their doctoral thesis.

Applications should include: 1) a cover letter, 2) your curriculum vitae with the list of publications, 3) your “sustainability statement as a scholar” sharing your vision and your personal way of embodying the role of professor in sustainability management (it can be a text, or a short video/podcast, 4) teaching evaluations from the past two years (if applicable), 5) two references (providing their contact details will be enough).

You can submit your application until January 31st 2021, as one PDF file (+ eventually the video or podcast).

About ESCP Business School

Established in 1819, ESCP Business School, the world’s first business school, was founded by a group of economic scholars and businessmen including the well-known economist Jean-Baptiste Say. ESCP BS is among the first business schools in Europe to have earned the three prestigious labels of excellence from the world’s leading accrediting bodies: EQUIS (1998), AMBA (1998) and AACSB (2003). ESCP BS offers various programs ranging from Bachelor to PhD, across 6 European campuses (Paris, Berlin, London, Madrid, Turin, Warsaw). It has more than 5000 students (Degree programs), 5000 Participants in Executive Education, a network of 55 000 alumni, and a faculty of 130 permanent professors. Regularly occupying top spots in both national and international rankings, ESCP BS counts among the most prestigious and leading business schools in Europe.
